NAZIS PROTEST INTERNMENT OF THEIR SAILORS

Plan Investigation of U. S.
Ship Release at Haug-esund, Norway

PROMISE "PLENTY OF ARGUMENTS"

Declare Prize Crew Commander Victim of His Own Kindness

(By Associated Press)
BERLIN, Nov. 4.—The German charge d'affaires at Oslo protested
today to the Norwegian government its internment of the German prize crew from the American freighter City of Flint and release of the vessel to the American crew.
Authorized sources said the protest was "oral and based on the whole procedure of Norwegian authorities in connection with the City of Flint's entry at Haugesund,"
where the internment and release orders were carried out early today.

Will Investigate
These informants intimated that the charge d'affaires soon would have or already had left, for Haugesund to make a personal investigation.

Well informed sources at Oslo expressed the opinion it would be rejected.

The Norwegian government's decision in freeing the vessel was based on chapter 13, article 21 of the Haugesund rules, which says a prize can be taken into a neutral port only because of weather,
or lack of fuel or provisions.

There was considerable telephoning between Oslo and Berlin during the night. These sources said there would be "plenty of argument" with the Norwegians in ensuing days.

Germany was represented as declining to accept the Norwegian argument that there was insufficient ground in the German report that a member of the American crew was ill for the City of Flint
to be brought into the neutral harbor of Haugesund.

The German contention was that such humane action should not be "rewarded" by internment of the prize crew commander who naturally could not tell whether the American was really ill but heeded
President Roosevelt's plea for good treatment of the 41 Americans.

One commentator suggested that the President should have announced his appeal not only to the British and Germans but also to the Norwegians.

"Victim of Humanitarianism"
The commander of the German prize crew which took the freighter into the Norwegian port was a "victim of his humanitarianism,"
in the opinion of foreign office
officials.

When one American fell ill, they said, he entered Haugesund so the American might be given proper medical care.

What did he get for his humanitarianism? asked one authorized commentator. "He was rewarded with internment. Do you call that fair?"

German authorities said the cargo, including what Germany considered contraband, still was aboard.
Asked whether the German navy might try to seize the City of Flint a second time after she left Norwegian territorial waters, an authorized commentator answered, "well
it's pretty stormy up there right now."

SPECIAL LEVY FOR VILLAGE

New Waterford Plans
$15,000 Improvement
To Waterworks

NEW WATERFORD, Nov. 4.—A 3 1/3-mill levy for 15 years to finance a new $15,000 village waterworks is the largest of two special issues for voters' consideration in the Tuesday election.

The second is a 1.69-mill levy for eight years for street improvements.

The waterworks fund would be used in purchasing a site, erecting the plant and purchasing equipment. Village boosters point out that it has large fruit orchards and coal stripping operations and would be able to obtain more new industries if insurance rates were not so high because of the lack of an adequate water supply.

Taylor Ave. Project

The street fund is proposed to grade, drain and apply a black top surface to Taylor ave. Another question is the renewal of a 3-mill levy for five years for support of the local school.

Two candidates oppose incumbent Mayor E. P. Kurtz, Pennsylvania railway agent, seeking re-election.

They are J. B. Eyster, a laborer
who formerly was mayor, and Rev.
C. S. Dopp, retired minister of the Methodist church of the Northeast
Ohio conference.

Five council members are seeking reelection, the six vacant posts. Eight are candidates.

Incumbents running again are W. E. Ferguson, council president and assistant cashier of the New Waterford Savings and Banking Co.;
John H. Koch, director of the New
Waterford Savings and Banking Co.; Robert Myers, employee of the Garrow Manufacturing Co.; Harry
Wilhelm, retired engineer, and Thomas Bowker, upholsterer at the Kemper Manufacturing Co. in East Palestine.

Other Aspirants Listed

The other aspirants are P. M.
Hawkins, officeworker at the Tuck-son Steel Co. in Youngstown; H. L.
Hollabaugh, laborer; John Koch
Sr., life-long village resident; Jay Sutherland, construction engineer for the Electric Furnace Co. in Salem;
R. D. Weaver, employee of the W. S.
George Pottery in East Palestine;

Will H. Calvin, present Unity township justice of the peace, and John E. Dreher, steel worker who formerly served as Tuscarawas county
justice of the peace.

Salineville Votes

On Sale of Liquor

SALINEVILLE, Nov. 4.—Six
questions on the sale of beer, wine and liquor will face voters here in
the Tuesday election.

The village council already has outlawed Sunday sale of beer.

Election will vote "yes" or "no"
on sale of intoxicating liquor, sale of packaged wine, sale of wine for drinking on or off the premises,
sale of liquor by the glass, sale of packaged liquor and sale of beer
by holders of class C or D permits.

Neither major party has mustered
a complete slate. Joseph P.
Burns, Republican, is unopposed for election as mayor. He has served four years as county trustee
and two as councilman.

CITY OF FLINT "MARKED SHIP", CREWMEN FEEL

Americans Express Doubt
Concerning Vessel's
Next Move

FREIGHTER MAKES STOP AT BERGEN

Norwegians Declare Nazi
Crew Disregarded
Regulations

(By Associated Press)
BERGEN, Nov. 4.—American crewmembers aboard the City of Flint told The Associated Press today
they feared the vessel now is "a marked ship" on the seas and expressed doubt concerning her next move.

The American freighter arrived here today, freed from her German captors by the decision of the Norwegian government to give the ship back to its American crew.

She came here from Haugesund, 75 miles down the Norwegian coast,
leaving behind the prize crew,
which was interned by Norway in the sudden climax to the 4,963-ton
ship's adventure as the war prize
of a German sea raider.

American Flag Unfurled

Free again to fly the American flag, after a saga of seizure and wandering in the north Atlantic for almost a month under an alien crew, she sailed from Haugesund before dawn. In the darkness observers could not see what flag she flew.

But the early morning announcement of the Norwegian admiralty
that the ship should be "given free"
left no doubt that the American crew again was in charge.

German possession of the City of Flint, which began Oct. 9 when a prize crew boarded her from the pocket battleship Deutschland, ended after British warships had sighted her on her way toward Germany.

Since leaving Murmansk, Soviet Russian port where the German crew had sailed her, the City of Flint had trailed the coast of Norway within territorial waters to escape the British blockade.

Her attempted dash for Germany
ended as she approached a point where she would have had to cross
the Baltic sea to reach Germany, blockaded by a cordon of British men of war. There had been no indication, however, the British planned any attempt to seize the freighter.

Regulations Disregarded

Disregard for Norwegian regulations apparently hastened the last chapter.

"The admiralty's statement said:
"The American City of Flint,
with a German prize crew, was allowed to use Norwegian territorial waters from Tromsø southward.
The ship, accompanied by a Norwegian warship, Olav Trygvason, and one torpedo boat, arrived at Haugesund Friday evening and anchored off Haugesund without permission."

"As there was no valid reason for calling at the Norwegian port, authorities decided the ship should be given free, and the German prize crew interned."

Norwegian naval officials said
also a warning shot had been fired across the freighter's bow
when she failed to heed a signal
from a Norwegian warship to slow down.

Unofficial estimates were that between 50 and 100 ships might
have to be withdrawn from the north Atlantic trade.

In addition to lifting the embargo against exporting arms, ammunition and implements of war to
belligerents, the bill requires shipments of arms and other materials to warring governments in Europe to be paid for in cash and transported in foreign ships. Title before such goods may leave American ports.

Some authorities have said that Britain and France, whose sea-power would enable them to carry out the bill.

Flash! Crook Found

In State's Prison

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 4.— There's at least one crook in the state penitentiary.

Warden W. W. Wald made the startling discovery. He stumbled on a counterfeiting machine in the machine shop.

"Ah," said the keeper of 6,000 convicts, "so this is where those pewter half dollars have been coming from."

"Well, boys! This is dishonest—crooked! I'll have the law on whoever is responsible."

The warden began rummaging around. Out in the rock pile he found a cache of counterfeit coins.
Somebody had been making them in the pen and passing them
at the prison commissary.

The warden and secret service agent, Leo Williams said the crook was George Duddy, who had been in other prisons, too.

Duddy won't get out of here until 1946.

"Neutrality Act Of 1939" Made Law By Roosevelt; War Orders Rush Is Seen

Officially Lifts Embargo On Sale of Arms to Belligerents; Billion Dollars' Worth of Business
Expected In Few Weeks

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—President Roosevelt signed into law today "the neutrality act of 1939," ending the embargo on arms sales to France, Britain and Germany and establishing a neutrality policy designed to keep the United States from being drawn into the war in Europe.

The new law, strictly regulating all dealings with belligerents in a series of safeguards against war unprecedented in the nation's history, was signed at a formal ceremony in the President's office in the presence of Secretary Hull and a large group of legislators.

His signing of the bill gave a signal which some officials expected to result in the placing of $1,000,000,000 worth of war orders in this country—mostly by France and Britain—
within the next few weeks.

Congress gave its final approval
to the repeal legislation yesterday and ended the 44-day special session called by the chief executive.

Over the vigorous protest of a substantial bi-partisan opposition,
the legislature agreed to repeal the ban on arms sales to warring nations of American shipping in the nation's history. The latter were designed to avoid "incidents" and possible subsequent involvement of this country in the European conflict by keeping ships and passengers out of danger zones.

Congress adjourns

The senate adopted the final draft of the bill 55 to 24; the house shortly afterward by 243 to 172. With little of the backslapping and noisy finishes customary at regular sessions, the senate then voted 46 to 25 to adjourn and the house 223 to 189, both ballots being largely along party lines. The session ended formally at 6:35 p. m.

Secretary Hull and his advisers, completed, meantime, the series of presidential proclamations and executive orders putting into effect
the new legislation.

The hardest task of the state department chief was the delimitation of the danger area from which congress decreed that American ships should be barred. The prohibition against entering this presidentially-defined zone is in addition to the bill's provision that American vessels must stay out of ports in England, Scotland, northern Ireland, France and Germany and, generally speaking, those on the east coast of Canada. Furthermore, this country's merchant marine is forbidden to carry arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerent ports anywhere,
except by inland routes to Canada.

Mediterranean Not in Zone

The Mediterranean, which was included in the present danger zone, would not be included in the new zone. It was learned, so that American ships could travel to Spain, Italy, Turkey, Greece and the near east.

The proclamations would continue to forbid and as a belligerent, an official said.

Nearly $80,000,000 worth of arms
export licenses to Great Britain and France, granted before the present embargo was proclaimed
after the outbreak of the war, will be resumed by the state department on the application of the American arms manufacturers holding the orders.

Unofficial estimates were that
between 50 and 100 ships might
have to be withdrawn from the
north Atlantic trade.

In addition to lifting the em-
bargo against exporting arms, am-
munition and implements of war to
belligerents, the bill requires shipments of arms and other materials to warring governments in Europe to be paid for in cash and
transported in foreign ships. Title

ican ports.

ALLIES CONFER ON PLAN TO BUY WAR MATERIALS

Britain and France Grasp
At Chance Offered by Arms Repeal

FIGHTING PLANES WILL BE SOUGHT

Japan, also needing Arms,
Eager to Better Relations With U. S.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Great Britain and France, grasping at the chance offered by the United States' lifting of the embargo, conferred today on a joint plan for purchases
of war materials overseas.

Following the arrival Thursday
of Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, authorized sources disclosed that the French and British governments were studying such questions as payment, shipment and distribution
between them of American arms.

Warplanes such as the Curtiss Hawk, which the French regard as one of the most flexible fighting ships on the western front, were understood to be the American product in which the Allies were most interested.

There was no indication at the moment, however, to what extent
they might be contemplating purchases.

TOKYO, Nov. 4.—Japan, impelled by the need of American raw materials with which to develop vast new markets created by the European war, was represented by economic experts today as eager to better relations with the United States.

Giving impetus to this relief was a 90-minute conference yesterday
between United States Ambassador Joseph G. Grew and Foreign Minister Kichisaburo Nomura, at which both were said to have explored the field of Japanese-American relations with "entire frankness."

Economists, attaching special significance to the meeting, said
it was "highly doubtful" that Japan's vast export program could be accomplished without ready access to American supplies.

To carry out her program, they said, Japan must obtain large quantities of American products
and raw materials—notably oil, cotton, scrap iron, scrap steel and machine tools.

WIDE OPEN SPACES

The front yard of the United States, as the Declaration of Panama makes clear to would-be trespassers is marked by a line running straight south from the eastern tip of Nova Scotia to South America. Inside this boundary two provocative incidents have occurred recently. The British ship Coumlore, according to reports, has been sunk by either an enemy battleship or submarine somewhere in the northeast corner of the restricted zone. The German ship Emmy Friedrich has been scuttled somewhere in the Caribbean to avoid capture by a British cruiser. There seems nothing to choose between in weighing the cases. Each is naval warfare in a zone the United States regards as closed to foreign belligerents.

But what does the United States intend to do about it? No imagination is required to see that the answer to this question is vastly more important than the protection contained in the shipping bill congress has debated for all these weeks. Shipping is to be prohibited from going into combat zones, but by the Declaration of Panama the United States has assumed responsibility for seeing that no combat zone is set up closer than 500 miles from the eastern coast. That's a lot of territory to keep under control, with most of the fleet on police duty in the Pacific. When it's considered that the Declaration of Panama also obligates the United States to be responsible for what goes on in a safety zone 300 miles deep around South America, the declaration begins to sound like a mouthful.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

With the neutrality issue finally disposed of in conference committee, congress is expected to mark time briefly, then adjourn till the regular session convenes in January. This will be done over the opposition of the Republican minority, whose members are just as anxious to go home as Democrats, but whose leadership favors extension of the special session.

The party issue involved here is uncomfortable, but vital. The minority is voicing a doubt that the Roosevelt administration has shown itself qualified to handle a delicate international situation without the restraining hand of congress to guide it. It does not have full confidence in the President and his advisers.

Realizing that it can't prolong the special session, Republican leadership is confined to the second best device of putting up objections to adjournment. Perhaps this will serve the purpose, which is to cause Mr. Roosevelt and his governing group to stifle the impulsiveness that has been their dominant characteristic throughout the last six years. It might even serve that purpose better than the presence of congress in Washington.

As congress approaches adjournment of the special session the unfinished business before it is the same as it was when the regular session adjourned—the domestic affairs of the United States. Foreign policy is not and never has been a popular issue. It must not be permitted to get undue attention in the year that remains before the next national election.

FAVORITE SONS

America's favorite sons have been pushed into a corner by war news, but there they stand—as fine a crowd of boys as one could find on a tour of the 48 states. When Sen. McNary of Oregon, Republican leader in the upper house, said he'd join them the other day it was a sure sign the 1940 campaign is coming to life.

A favorite son is a politician who goes to a party convention with delegates from his own and perhaps a few other states under his thumb. Besides McNary, a quick checkup reveals the following impressive list of American politicians who may be in this strategic position, come next summer:—

Republicans—Dewey of New York, Taft of Ohio, Vandenberg of Michigan, James of Pennsylvania, Bridges of New Hampshire, Martin of Massachusetts, Capper of Kansas.

Democrats—Garner of Texas, Moore of New Jersey, Clark of Missouri, McNutt of Indiana, Reynolds of N. Carolina, George of Georgia, Byrd of Virginia, Hull of Tennessee, Harrison of Mississippi, Byrnes of S. Carolina, Tydings of Maryland, Wheeler of Montana.

Put them all together, throw in a dark horse or two, add some horse trading, stir in the possibility of a third term for Franklin D. Roosevelt and somewhere in the mixture is the next President of the United States.

SNAPPERS AND BRISTLERS

Technical neutrality being now reduced to legal formula, there is some excuse for thinking once more of the thing called neutrality of the spirit. It is not in a flourishing condition.

Snappers and bristlers have been blasting at its roots. Charmed by the sound of their own voices, they have been heating up the atmosphere with blistering comments. Their yammering shouldn't go unchallenged.

Neutrality of the spirit is not namby-pamby or wishy-washy. It denotes neither impairment of courage nor lack of conviction. Rather, it is the result of firm resolve to pursue a fixed policy of staying out of trouble.

It demands an extraordinary amount of self-discipline. There is no room in it for the great American habit of popping off. It thrives on balanced viewpoints, skepticism of all things that smack of propaganda, and even tempers.

Most important of all, it assumes that first things shall be put first. That means in the United States that nothing shall be permitted to become more important than the welfare of the United States—an absurdly simple proposition, but one the snappers and bristlers seeking to find a diversion on the other side of the Atlantic ocean refuse to understand.

City solicitor is John E. Scott, Democrat.

For Sunday, November 5

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most propitious one for affairs of the church, clerics and all mystical or spiritual pursuits or avocations. It is a favorable time for deep study of the obscure, occult or psychological aspects of human development. Social matters are interesting but subject to disruption or inharmonious.

Those whose birthday it is face a year of splendid opportunity for gaining steady headway through application, industry and sound judgment. However, there may be sudden changes or upsets, perhaps in the social life, demanding perseverance and patience.

A child born on this day may be steady, studious and methodical despite some erratic, restive and impetuous moods.

For Monday, November 6

MONDAY'S astrological forecast bears testimonies of rather conflicting interests with the attention centered on the affectional, social or festive activities, to the neglect of business. This oversight might cause legal complications, trouble involving signatures or some other irregularity.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of lively social or romantic interest, with courtship, marriage or other convivial celebrations claiming paramount attention. But be wary of affixing the signature carelessly to documents or writings, as fraud and misunderstandings menace.

A child born on this day may be generous, congenial, popular and devoted to romantic or social life rather than business, in which it may be slack or lacking in dependability.

The real traffic problem is the quarrel between a 50-mile-an-hour speed law and a 90-mile-an-hour motor.

Biliousness Is Returning To Fashion, Says Physician

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AS CAREFUL investigations are made more frequently in obscure digestive disturbances, and all parts and organs of the digestive system can be tested for their functional efficiency, the role that bile plays is receiving more attention and the old-time "biliousness" is coming back into fashion.

An eminent London consultant, Dr. A. P. Hurst, reports that in attacks of migraine there seems to be a definite disturbance of the bile, and goes on to say that if a duo-

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

denal tube is passed into the intestines during an attack of migraine, and the gall bladder emptied, it will prevent attacks for several months to come.

The bile is stored in the gall bladder. The function of the gall bladder is to keep the bile until it is needed. When a meal, especially a meal containing fat, appears in the upper intestine, the gall bladder allows a free flow of bile into that region. It mingles with the food and helps fat digestion by saponifying the fats.

Ignition Bile
The fat accumulated in the gall bladder between meals is called ignition bile, because it ignites the processes of digestion as soon as food is swallowed.

I once attended an eminent surgeon after he had an operation on his gall bladder. For a while his bile tubes were stopped up; there was no free bile in his intestines. He experienced a profound melancholy. He took no interest in food, and his whole outlook was most depressing. I will never forget the delight he experienced when things got to working properly again, and he began once more to enjoy his favorite dishes as he had in days of health.

So disturbances of fat digestion with vague abdominal distress, flatulence, intolerance of foods and dyspepsia may be due to lack of bile. Fortunately bile salts can be supplied artificially very easily. Practical results, especially in operated patients such as my surgeon mode of treatment. Along with it a diet low in fats, until fat digestion is once more normal, is advocated. Such a diet is as follows:

Meats: Lean roast beef, chicken, lamb chops, roast lamb and steaks. Veal may be permitted. Roasting, grilling, boiling or baking is preferable to frying. Many of the common fish are allowed.

Vegetables: There is practically

WIDE OPEN SPACES

The front yard of the United States, as the Declaration of Panama makes clear to would-be trespassers, is marked by a line running straight south from the eastern tip of Nova Scotia to South America. Inside this boundary two provocative incidents have occurred recently. The British ship Columbo, according to reports, has been sunk by either an enemy battleship or submarine somewhere in the northeast corner of the restricted zone. The German ship Emmy Friedrich has been scuttled somewhere in the Caribbean to avoid capture by a British cruiser. There seems nothing to choose between in weighing the cases. Each is naval warfare in a zone the United States regards as closed to foreign belligerents.

But what does the United States intend to do about it? No imagination is required to see that the answer to this question is vastly more important than the protection contained in the shipping bill congress has debated for all these weeks. Shipping is to be prohibited from going into combat zones, but by the Declaration of Panama the United States has assumed responsibility for seeing that no combat zone is set up closer than 500 miles from the eastern coast. That's a lot of territory to keep under control, with most of the fleet on police duty in the Pacific. When it's considered that the Declaration of Panama also obligates the United States to be responsible for what goes on in a safety zone 300 miles deep around South America, the declaration begins to sound like a mouthful.

With the neutrality issue finally disposed of in conference committee, congress is expected to mark time briefly, then adjourn till the regular session convenes in January. This will be done over the opposition of the Republican minority, whose members are just as anxious to go home as Democrats, but whose leadership favors extension of the special session.

The party issue involved here is uncomfortable, but vital. The minority is voicing a doubt that the Roosevelt administration has shown itself qualified to handle a delicate international situation without the restraining hand of congress to guide it. It does not have full confidence in the President and his advisers. Realizing that it can't prolong the special session, Republican leadership is confined to the second best device of putting up objections to adjournment. Perhaps this will serve the purpose, which is to cause Mr. Roosevelt and his governing group to stifle the impulsiveness that has been their dominant characteristic throughout the last six years. It might even serve that purpose better than the presence of congress in Washington.

As congress approaches adjournment of the special session the unfinished business before it is the same as it was when the regular session adjourned—the domestic affairs of the United States. Foreign policy is not and never has been a popular issue. It must not be permitted to get undue attention in the year that remains before the next national election.

FAVORITE SONS

America's favorite sons have been pushed into a corner by war news, but there they stand—as fine a crowd of boys as one could find on a tour of the 48 states. When Sen. McNary of Oregon, Republican leader in the upper house, said he'd join them the other day it was a sure sign the 1940 campaign is coming to life.

A favorite son is a politician who goes to a party convention with delegates from his own and perhaps a few other states under his thumb. Besides McNary, a quick checkup reveals the following impressive list of American politicians who may be in this strategic position, come next summer:—

Republicans—Dewey of New York, Taft of Ohio, Vandenberg of Michigan, James of Pennsylvania, Bridges of New Hampshire, Martin of Massachusetts, Capper of Kansas.

Democrats—Garner of Texas, Moore of New Jersey, Clark of Missouri, McNutt of Indiana, Reynolds of N. Carolina, George of Georgia, Byrd of Virginia, Hull of Tennessee, Harrison of Mississippi, Byrnes of S. Carolina, Tydings of Maryland, Wheeler of Montana.

Put them all together, throw in a dark horse or two, add some horse trading, stir in the possibility of a third term for Franklin D. Roosevelt and somewhere in the mixture is the next President of the United States.

SNAPPERS AND BRISTLERS

Technical neutrality being now reduced to legal formula, there is some excuse for thinking once more of the thing called neutrality of the spirit. It is not in a flourishing condition.

Snappers and bristlers have been blasting at its roots. Charmed by the sound of their own voices, they have been heating up the atmosphere with blistering comments. Their yammering shouldn't go unchallenged.

Neutrality of the spirit is not namby-pamby or wishy-washy. It denotes neither impairment of courage nor lack of conviction. Rather, it is the result of firm resolve to pursue a fixed policy of staying out of trouble.

It demands an extraordinary amount of self-discipline. There is no room in it for the great American habit of popping-off. It thrives on balanced viewpoints, skepticism of all things that smack of propaganda, and even tempers.

Most important of all, it assumes that first things shall be put first. That means in the United States that nothing shall be permitted to become more important than the welfare of the United States—an absurdly simple proposition, but one the snappers and bristlers seeking to find a diversion on the other side of the Atlantic ocean refuse to understand.

Theatre Attractions

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," showing at the State Sunday through Tuesday, is another Academy award winner and smash success for Director Frank Capra, Columbia studio, and James Stewart and Jean Arthur, who play the leading roles.

Not often does a picture come along which can be called nearly perfect by every standard of the profession and its various branches. Yet the story of a small town boy, whose American ideals carried him through the besetting vices and corruption of political grafters' setup, is one which touches the heart, and also has humor.

Every scene and every characterization packs an emotional appeal that has seldom been equaled on the screen.

Thomas Mitchell, character actor, scores as the ace newspaperman. The cast also includes Claude Rains, Edward Arnold, Guy Kibbee, Beulah Bondi, Harry Carey and H. B. Warner.

Highly recommended for every member of the theater-going audience.

Another achievement in motion pictures is "They Shall Have Music," presenting on the screen for the first time the violin genius Jascha Heifetz in a human story of youngsters with musical greatness in their hearts. The picture, which also features Joel McCrea, Andrea Leeds and young Gene Reynolds, will be the Wednesday only feature at the State.

Gary Cooper, David Niven, Reginald Owen and Andrea Leeds have the featured roles in "The Real Glory" which will be seen at the State theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The story deals with the Philippine scouts of the U. S. army and their bravery at the conclusion of the Spanish American war when the islands were overrun by insurrectionists and religious fanatics.

A timely and engrossing story of espionage between two warring nations, "U-Boat 29" brings Valerie Hobson, Conrad Veidt and Sebastian Shaw, English players to the Grand Sunday. "Television Spy," which has William Henry, Judith Barrett and William Collier, Sr., will be the Grand's Wednesday only picture.

Roy Rogers' latest western is "Wall Street Cowboy" showing at the Grand Friday and Saturday.

 A. T. Hutson respectfully solicits the support of the voters of Salem and Perry Township at the Election on Tuesday, Nov. 7th, for reelection as Justice of the Peace. In his term of office of almost four years, but two cases of appeal from his decisions to a higher court have been taken. His attitude in office toward all mankind has been "Look Up, Lift Up," and not push farther down into trouble and dependency. These are perilous times, but the initiative and faith of the people in this God-favored land will eventually solve our problems as in sundry previous periods of our history.

Do not fail to exercise your prerogative of American citizenship and be glad of the opportunity to vote.

BULLETIN ON 4 STATE ISSUES

TO BE DECIDED BY THE VOTERS OF OHIO

ELECTION, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1939

Issued by the Republican State Central Committee of Ohio, Ed D. Schorr Chairman, Columbus, Ohio

Republican State Committee Makes Recommendations On Each Proposition TO THE PEOPLE OF OHIO:

At the coming election, on Tuesday, November 7, 1939, four state issues will be submitted to the voters of Ohio for determination.

The official "Questions or Issues" ballot carrying these issues, which will be used in most of the counties, will be like the sample ballot shown at the right. In a few counties the official ballot may be narrower than this sample ballot. In a few counties local issues may be on the same ballot following the state issues. But in every county the four state issues will appear on the official "Questions or Issues" ballot in the same order in which they are shown on this sample ballot.

"STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION" AMENDMENT
 The first issue on the official ballot carrying the state issues, will be the so-called "State Board of Education" amendment. It is a proposal to amend Section 4 of Article VI of the Constitution of Ohio so as to create a state board of education and director of education, and to abolish the existing office of superintendent of public instruction. This proposal is being submitted to the voters of Ohio pursuant to a resolution providing therefor adopted by the 93rd General Assembly of Ohio.

"BIGELOW" AMENDMENTS
 The second and third issues on the official ballot carrying the state issues, will be the so-called "Bigelow" amendments. The second issue is a proposal to amend the Constitution of Ohio by the adoption of a new section to be known as Section 13 of Article XII, so as to provide a pension for all persons 60 years of age or over, and to levy special real estate and income taxes to raise a part of the money required therefor. The third issue is a proposal to amend the Constitution of Ohio by the adoption of a new section to be known as Section 1 (h) of Article II so as to provide that the signatures of 100,000 electors from the state at-large shall be sufficient for an initiative petition submitting a proposed constitutional amendment to the vote of the people, and to provide that the signatures of 50,000 electors from the state at-large shall be sufficient for an initiative petition submitting any proposed law directly to the vote of the people without first submitting it to the Legislature. Both of these proposals are being submitted to the voters of Ohio pursuant to an initiative petition sponsored by the Bigelow Pension Plan Committee.

"CIVIL SERVICE" REFERENDUM
 The fourth issue on the official ballot carrying the state issues will be the so-called "Civil Service" referendum. It is a referendum on House Bill No. 14 amending the civil service laws of Ohio, passed by the 93rd General Assembly and approved by the Governor. This referendum is being submitted to the voters of Ohio pursuant to a referendum petition sponsored by Democratic State Headquarters.

STATE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS
 The Republican State Central and Executive Committee of Ohio, the duly elected and legally constituted controlling committee of the Republican Party in Ohio, at a meeting duly called and held in the City of Columbus, on Tuesday, October 17, 1939, after carefully considering each of these four state issues, unanimously adopted resolutions recommending to the people of Ohio: Adoption of the "State Board of Education" amendment; rejection of both of the "Bigelow" amendments; and approval of House Bill No. 14 amending the civil service laws. Said resolutions urge the people of Ohio voting at the election to be held on Tuesday, November 7, 1939, to vote on said issues as shown on the sample ballot at the right.

PARTISAN CONSIDERATIONS NOT INVOLVED
 May I state that in adopting these resolutions the members of the Republican State Central and Executive Committee were not influenced by partisan considerations of any kind. The first three of these issues are clearly not Party issues. The fourth issue may, with some degree of reason be said to be a Party issue. In adopting these resolutions the members of the Committee were firmly convinced that the public welfare, the best interests of all the people, require action on these state issues as recommended in said resolutions.

Therefore we urge the people of Ohio to carefully consider these issues, to go to the polls on November 7th, and to vote on these issues as indicated on the sample ballot at the right. We also urge Republicans throughout the State to bring this Bulletin to the attention of all voters, and to urge them to vote in accordance with the Committee's recommendations, and to do everything possible, both prior to and on election day, to the end that the result of the election may be for the best interests of all the people.

Respectfully,
 ED D. SCHORR,
 Republican State Chairman.

Quaker Gridders Pound Out 7-0 Victory Over Dover Crew

Crimson Shows Versatile And Dangerous Attack But Fails To Hit Pay-Off Line

One touchdown and a thousand thrills tell the story of Salem High school's second victory in two years over the Dover Crimson last night at Crater field, Dover. The thrills were supplied by the Crimson forward passes and the hard running Johnny Novak; the touchdown by the Quakers and it was enough to give them a 7-0 conquest.

The score came in the second quarter in a game which bordered almost on the freakish, with anything liable to happen at any given moment.

The Quakers had their Wukotich and the Crimson its Novak as the respective spearheads of the rival offenses.

Salem as a whole turned in its best efforts in the second period, when the Quakers scored. With the exception of that one period Dover was dangerous all the time but never managed to reach that final stripe.

Johnny Novak was the big ground gainer as Dover piled up 11 first downs to Salem's three, including three on penalties and one on what was termed pass interference, though the decision, from a Salem standpoint, was open to question. Novak did the kicking, the passing and the ball carrying, with a little help now and then to give him a chance to rest.

He hugged the ball most of the time to give Dover the ground gaining edge over Salem, 143 yards to 94, in rushing; and he tossed 16 passes, completing four, for 64 yards while the Quakers were connecting for three out of four short tosses over the line.

Salem Penalized Plenty
Salem was distinctly the leader in the matter of penalties. The officials slapped 50 yards on the visitors against five for Dover.

Dover threatened in the first period. After Bringardner took Beck's opening boot, Novak made six yards through right guard and Fullback Boich added seven through center for a first down on the Dover 48. After two line bucks, which were stopped, Novak faked a punt, passing over the line to Boich who got away to the Salem 25-yard line.

Novak then hammered at the Salem line and the Crimson pushed the ball to the Salem 16 where they were forced to give it up.

After two thrusts at the line, Salem kicked to Novak, downed on the Dover 49 after a two-yard run-back.

Dover's attack bogged momentarily and Novak punted to Volio, who returned the ball 10 yards to the 35. A bad pass from center which bounded through the Salem backfield and was stopped accidentally by Wukotich made two at center and Salem was penalized 15 yards for holding.

West punted to the 50. Novak returning to the Salem 37 Boich was stopped at the line but Novak picked up 11 on the next plunge. Again the Quakers held and Novak punted out of bounds on the 14.

Baillie Recovers Fumble
The first half of the second quarter developed a punting duel and then came the break which put the Quakers in scoring position.

West punted to Novak, who let the ball get through his legs. Baillie fell on it on the Dover 20.

After picking up five yards, the Quakers were penalized 15 for clipping, putting the ball back on the 30. Wukotich punted over the line to Shaw just half a foot short of a first down. This Wukotich made on the next plunge through center.

Dover baited the attack, however, and Novak later kicked out to Shaw on the 23. Wukotich plunged for a first down on the 12. The Quakers then hammered the ball to the three-yard line and were stopped.

Again Novak punted out. The ball was taken by Volio on the 30 and he squirmed back to the Dover 16. Wukotich passed to Shaw for nine yards. With 41 seconds of playing time remaining in the first half, a fumble messed up the next play.

Then Wukotich, on a reverse, made a first down on the Dover five.

Shaw, on an end-around on the next play, scored. Wukotich planted the sphere between the uprights for the extra point and the half ended on the kickoff.

Thrills and Chills

For the next two periods, thrills and chills chased alternately up and down Salem spines, what with Novak's dangerous passes and brilliant line thrusts and a temperature close to the freezing point.

The Crimson star passed and ran twice to the Salem 20-yard line but here the threat lost force both times.

The Quakers themselves provided a break which might have been disastrous in the final quarter. Fortunately, it wasn't.

Novak had punted out of bounds on the Salem 18. Wukotich made three at center. Green two off tackle and Wukotich about four and a half through center.

NATIONAL BRASS—Forfeit.

Today's Big Football Games Promise Plenty Of Action

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Nov. 4. — You can count on the fingers of two hands the topmost attractions on today's national football schedule—that is the games which really count in deciding sectional championships or the national title. But there's no counting those almost-equally important games where the main attraction is nothing more than a duel between a couple of great backs or just a fine football game.

The outstanding games are Army-

Notre Dame in the east—just an old-time crowd pleaser that's sure to fill the Yankee stadium to its 75,000 capacity regardless of the teams' records; Tennessee-Louisiana State in the south, Michigan-Illinois in the Big Ten, Nebraska-Missouri in the Big Six, Texas A. & M.-Arkansas in the southwest, Colorado-Utah in the Rocky Mountain Big Seven and Oregon State-Southern California on the Pacific coast.

Rank With Irish

Michigan's Wolverines rank with Notre Dame's Irish as the only unbeaten and untied teams of major importance in the mid-west. There's always a chance of an upset in these traditional battles, but the main question at Champaign seems to be whether Michigan and Tom Harmon can wipe out the memory of that 1924 game when Red Grange scored five touchdowns and the Illini won 39-14.

The Northwestern-Minnesota, Indiana-Ohio State and Iowa-Purdue games all will have some bearing upon the Big Ten title, but they don't have that touch of added interest. In the Big Six, undefeated Oklahoma against Iowa State would be about even with undefeated Nebraska against Missouri except for the question of what pitchin' Paul Christman's passes can do against the Huskers.

That Tennessee-L. S. U. game is a natural in every way. They're the south's prime bidders for national honors as well as rivals for the Southwest Conference crown. Tennessee has a great ball carrier in George (Bad News) Cafego and L. S. U. boasts a remarkable air-scoring team in Leo Bird and Ken Kavanaugh.

Friday's outstanding triumphs were credited to Kansas State and Clemson. K-State walloped Kansas 27-6 in their traditional scrap while Clemson, which upset Navy last week, whipped another eastern rival, George Washington, 13-6. Georgia beat little Mercer for the 21st successive time, 16-9, and Miami of Florida upset the touring Tech team, 19-0. Drake's Bulldogs moved into second place in the Missouri Valley Conference with a 20-7 triumph over Washburn.

Touchdowns—Salineville: Leek (2), Calvin (1), McClellan (2). Goshen: Baker.

Points after touchdown: Salineville: Lynn, Temple, Leek, Goshen: Schopfer.

Score by periods:
Salineville 13 7 0 13—33
Goshen 7 0 0 0—7

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Broadway has a tip Tom Lieb, ex-Loyola (Los Angeles) coach, will take over a leading Philly eleven next year, Villanova 7-7. It'll be Billy Conn vs. Ben Brown in Miami's Orange bowl in February. Four outstanding Michigan frosh griders shortly will depart Ann Arbor to see if it's true what they say about Dixie. There'll be no Ryder cup matches this year, but there'll be a U. S. Ryder cup team. George Jacobus, president of the P. G. A., is getting ready to name one as a complimentary gesture to the pro stand-outs.

The Wake Forest press department may be sorry tonight that last spring it announced that one of Wake Forest's football opponents is a "college named Marshall."

Red Grange has got himself involved in a Chicago tong war—as judge in an ice men's contest. New York Post says when and if the majors start looking for a successor to Judge Landis, the favorite will be Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International league. If the Texas Aggies are stopped this year it'll be by the winner of today's Southern Methodist-Texas U. tilt. Social note: The Army and Notre Dame teams had lunch together yesterday.

Bob Feller is suing a candy concern for commissions on the sale of a product he endorsed. Charles Bidwell, owner of the Chicago Cardinals, is very ill—Pneumonia. While the Phils deny they've received offers for Morris Aronovich, they leave the door wide open.

Huntington Grid Players Injured

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 4.—Two Huntington high school football players, Robert Pulwiler and Robert Hunt, both 17, were in a hospital today with injuries suffered in a contest yesterday with Portsmouth (O.) High school. Pulwiler, whose condition was described as serious, suffered a basal skull fracture and fracture of a neck vertebrae. Hunt suffered brain concussion.

BIMELECH TOPS FIELD IN RACE

Joins Eight Other Fast Performers In Pimlico's Futurity

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4.—Pimlico's Futurity, with a purse expected to gross around $460,000 drew nine fast performers postward today, headed by Col. E. R. Bradley's undefeated Bimelech.

The two-year old son of Black Toney-La Troienne, with five straight wins, was aiming at a sixth which would leave him a heavily backed winter-book favorite in the 1940 Kentucky derby.

Bimelech, victor in the Belmont Futurity, was facing a mile and a sixteenth distance for the first time, but the early odds held him a 3 to 5 favorite.

Opposing Bimelech among others, were Mrs. Parker Corning's Straight Lead, who took the New England Futurity last week, and Manhasset stable's Call to Colors, both well liked. Yancey Christman's Rough Pass, winner of the Loch Raven purse here Wednesday and the Spalding Lowe Jenkins' Cap at Laurel, was another horse for Bimelech to watch.

Close behind Rough Pass in the early odds was Wheatley stable's Merry Knight, winner of the Army Cap at Empire on the afternoon Straight Lead took New England—from which Bimelech was scratched.

Other juveniles entered were Christiana stable's Miss Ferdinand, Blair Stud's Penelon, W. W. Vaughan's Roncat, and H. P. Bailey's Titulator. Miss Ferdinand and Call to Colors carried the weight at 119 pounds, the others 122.

Winner of the Futurity was to get approximately $25,000.

Quaker Gridders Pound Out 7-0 Victory Over Dover Crew

Crimson Shows Versatile And Dangerous Attack But Fails To Hit Pay-Off Line

One touchdown and a thousand thrills tell the story of Salem High school's second victory in two years over the Dover Crimson last night at Crater field, Dover. The thrills were supplied by the Crimson forward passes and the hard running Johnny Novak; the touchdowns by the Quakers and it was enough to give them a 7-0 conquest.

The score came in the second quarter in a game which bordered almost on the freakish, with anything liable to happen at any given moment.

The Quakers had their Wukotich and the Crimson its Novak as the respective spearheads of the rival offenses.

Salem as a whole turned in its best efforts in the second period, when the Quakers scored. With the exception of that one period Dover was dangerous all the time but never managed to reach that final stripe.

Johnny Novak was the big ground gainer as Dover piled up 11 first downs to Salem's three, including three on penalties and one on what was termed pass interference, though the distance from a Salem standpoint, was open to question. Novak did the kicking, the passing and the ball carrying, with a little help now and then to give him a chance to rest.

He lugged the ball most of the time to give Dover the ground gaining edge over Salem, 143 yards to 94, in rushing; and he tossed 16 passes, completing four, for 64 yards while the Quakers were connecting for three out of four short tosses over the line.

Beck's opening boot, Novak made six yards through right guard and Fullback Boich added seven through center for a first down on the Dover 48. After two line bucks, which were stopped, Novak faked a punt, passing over the line to Boich who got away to the Salem 25-yard line.

Novak then hammered at the Salem line and the Crimson pushed the ball to the Salem 16 where they were forced to give it up.

After two thrusts at the line, Salem kicked to Novak, downed on the Dover 49 after a two-yard run-back.

Dover's attack bogged momentarily and Novak punted to Vollo, who returned the ball 10 yards to the 35. A bad pass from center which bounded through the Salem backfield and was stopped accidentally by the referee, lost seven yards. Wukotich made two at center and Salem was penalized 15 yards for holding.

West punted to the 50. Novak returning to the Salem 37. Boich was stopped at the line but Novak picked up 11 on the next plunge. Again the Quakers held and Novak punted out of bounds on the 14.

Ballie Recovers Fumble
The first half of the second quarter developed a punting duel and then came the break which put the Quakers in scoring position.

West punted to Novak, who let the ball get through his legs. Ballie fell on it on the Dover 20.

After picking up five yards, the Quakers were penalized 15 for clipping, putting the ball back on the 35. Wukotich passed over the line to Shoe just half a foot short of a first down. This Wukotich made on the next plunge through center.

Dover halted the attack, however, and Novak later kicked out to Shoe on the 23. Wukotich plunged for a first down on the 12. The Quakers then hammered the ball to the three-yard line and were stopped.

Again Novak punted out. The ball was taken by Vollo on the 30 and he squirmed back to the Dover 16. Wukotich passed to Shoe for nine yards. With 41 seconds of playing time remaining in the first half, a fumble muffed up the next play. Then Wukotich, on a reverse, made a first down on the Dover five.

Shoe, on an end-around on the next play, scored. Wukotich planted the sphere between the uprights for the extra point and the half ended on the kickoff.

Thrills and Chills
For the next two periods, thrills and chills chased alternately up and down Salem spines, what with Novak's dangerous passes and brilliant line thrusts and a temperature close to the freezing point.

The Crimson star passed and ran twice to the Salem 30-yard line but here the threat lost force both times.

The Quakers themselves provided a break which might have been disastrous in the final quarter. Fortunately, it wasn't.

Novak had punted out of bounds on the Salem 18. Wukotich made three at center. Green, two off tackle and Wukotich about four and a half through center.

That was the situation—fourth down and a half a yard, near the Salem 28 yard line. The Quakers decided to run the ball instead of kicking but the run didn't materialize. Wukotich was stopped dead at the line and Dover took the ball on the Salem 28.

Novak made nine right off the bat at right end and then plunged center for a first down on the 15.

Quakers Tighten
The Quakers tightened up and Novak lost two yards at right end; a pass was batted down; Novak made two at center and his next pass, to End Bringardner, was good but just short of a first down and Salem grabbed the ball. West punted out to Novak who was stopped in his tracks on the Dover 47.

Here Novak passed into the line to Bringardner, coming across, and the end went to the Salem 30-yard line before he was stopped. Novak made five at left tackle, another at right and interference was ruled on his next pass to Bringardner, giving the Crimson the ball on the Salem 15 and a first down.

Novak made a yard at center; a pass was knocked down, on the third down, he failed to gain at right end. On the fourth down Novak passed to Bringardner but the gain was short of a first down and Salem took the ball on the eight. After three plays West punted out to the 44 and then ensued a flurry of passes which, however, failed as the closing seconds ticked away.

LIVESTOCK

"KNIGHT ERRANT"

by Jack McDonald

SYNOPSIS

It was post time for the Santa Anita Handicap, "Coronado," the favorite, with fourteen straight victories, pranced on the track to the applause of the crowd. Dan Mills, his owner, a sportsman of high calibre, hung on the rail, watching. He had a feeling of apprehension. Just a few hours ago, he had collapsed in the tack room and Charley Bassitt, horseman of unsavory reputation, had taken "Coronado" to the receiving barn. Thrilling with excitement, Dan's 18-year-old daughter, Heather, watches from her grandstand box. In the unserved section in back of Heather stands "Slim" Maynard and his pal, "Snapper" Elliott. "Slim," born Andrew Branson Maynard, knew horses from the hoof up. His father had a string of thoroughbreds when Slim was a boy, but a flood ruined the Maynard stables and Slim is now on his uppers. All he and Snapper could scrape together was bet on "Coronado" today.

CHAPTER II

In his jaunty check suit, a trifle too loud perhaps, Slim leaned over the back of the box where Heather sat with her valiant blue eyes fixed adoringly on Coronado.

"Snapper," Slim breathed from a corner of his mouth like a ventriloquist. "Take a look at Bassitt there. Did you see what window he just came from?"

Snapper gaped at a man standing there, clutching a bale of tickets.

Paunchy, a blue shirt open at the collar and with the hard, cold eyes of a gambler, Bassitt looked the part of a case-hardened race tracker.

"That was the $50 window Bassitt just left! He's got a wad of tickets there that would choke Coronado," observed Snapper.

"He knows something or he wouldn't be sending it in this way. I'll guarantee you he's betting around Coronado! And Bassitt's no lunatic when it comes up shopping time around a mutual window. He knows something, you can go to sleep on that."

The horses were at the barrier now, about straightened out in their stalls, a long line of silks gleaming in the sunlight.

Suddenly Slim went white. Premonition, the uncanny savagery of a gambler, went over him in an evil wave. He caught up his glasses, trained them on the black figure of Coronado and groaned.

Something had gone wrong! As Slim watched, Coronado leaped high in the air on his fore feet and came tumbling to the ground to cast himself under the starting gate. He left Jockey Gardner hanging like a monkey on the steel framework. A dull, buzzing groan went up from the stands.

Starter Eddie Thomas climbed down off his platform. He pulled a loose flap of the gate stall back with one hand and with the other released Coronado's pinioned leg. The bewildered horse struggled to his feet. Thomas bawled:

"Mount him and ride him around in back of the gate in circles, Gardner. Let's have a good look at him."

Coronado appeared sound enough. But he had broken out in a sudsy lather. He champed savagely at his bit. It was all the veteran jockey could do to hold him.

In the stands and on the lawn thousands were on their feet staring.

Through his glasses, Slim saw the desperation of the little jockey as he reined Coronado into starting gate.

"I'm asking if you're all right, Gardner?" bawled Thomas. "We're ready to go."

Gardner did not answer the starter in words. But he nodded.

To the tumult and a thunder of 66,000 throats they were off! Out of the mile and a quarter chute they swept, the nineteen thoroughbreds, away to a perfect start.

Coronado's black hide lost momentarily to view. Heather stood on her toes, her eyes eagerly searching for the blue and gold silks of Jockey Joe Gardner. Her heart danced with pride and a tingling rapture surged through her when she found them in the lead.

Coronado's out in front, just where he wants to be! Slim Maynard exulted to Snapper Elliott from their position behind Heather's box. "He's never lost a race once he took the lead!"

Down by the rail, Heather's father was thinking this also, and his tired heart lifted. You had to let Coronado run his own race. Old Dan had found that out, long ago. Coronado was no front runner. He could come from behind to collar the best of them. But it riddled the black horse to be back in the pack at any stage of the race. He'd worry and fret until he got to the front, and then settle down with a stride as smooth as a swan's back.

Jockey Gardner had opened up daylight to the field right off the bat, and now, judiciously, he took Coronado to the rail.

"He's home free!" sang out Slim with relief.

Coronado seldom won by a wide margin. He would run only as fast as his opposition made him.

When a horse made a move at him, he would open the throttle. One by one he would grind them into submission that way.

Mary, a rugged thoroughbred had raced his heart out trying to run down the relentless black prince of the western tracks.

Was there, imperceptible at first, a flaw in the magnificent rhythm of those famous ebony legs? Dan noted, and his heart seemed to dry up in his thin chest. And, with the trained eye of an expert, Slim Maynard saw it, too.

"He's witting!" Slim choked, nudging Snapper, but keeping his glasses moving with the big, black horse. "Snapper, he's groggy. A dead short horse! I tell you, not even a man like Dan Mills can get 'em up to race like this without a tightener."

And they hadn't gone a sixteenth of a mile yet.

Where the straightaway from the chute blends into the mile oval proper, Coronado bolted forward with a squeal strange to Gardner's ears. Suddenly his legs buckled. Gardner went catapulting over the black neck. The horse crashed headlong to the ground, and was lost in the jumble of clattering hoofs.

A mighty groan went up from the stands. "He's down! Coronado's down! The word soured through the immense throng.

"Coronado!" screamed Heather. She shuddered, closed her eyes and opened them, to find Coronado lying motionless on the track and Gardner, badly shaken up, limping to his side. The other horses swept on, with Lady Killer in the lead.

Heather clinched the rail in front of the box for support, and stood trembling, weak and frightened, helpless as a child. The rest of the race was a blank to her.

A little later she saw her stunned father, standing over Coronado. The great stake horse lay motionless, staring up at Dan out of wide, rolling eyes.

Dan knelt and ran his hand gently over the slim black legs, and then bent them frantically at the knees, but could find no break.

"Get up, laddie," old Dan urged brokenly, tugging gently at the nose band of the bride in the hope Coronado would rise.

But Coronado lay with his head stretched wearily on the track.

LEST WE FORGET

Editor News:

In our zeal for self promotion it seems that we are apt to take up to ourselves all that lies about us. I am also wondering if the Democratic candidate for mayor isn't attempting this.

It would seem that the person most responsible for that reduction of Salem's bonded indebtedness would be the auditor who has been doing the same good job since 1935. Also it would seem that city council might get a hand for after all they appropriate all monies spent by the city. They may merely see that the money allotted each department is expended judiciously—or else not.

Is the mention of lower water rates to mean a revival of the sewer tax which Mr. Phillips advocated when he was mayor in 1934-35? You haven't forgotten the 2,000 or more of us taxpayers who signed those petitions and which thank goodness stopped the crazy legislation before it had gone too far—and all this bunkum at a time we couldn't pay the taxes we already had upon us. Lest we forget—Lest we forget.

"KNIGHT ERRANT"

by Jack McDonald

SYNOPSIS

It was post time for the Santa Anita Handicap. "Coronado" the favorite, with fourteen straight victories, pranced on the track to the applause of the crowd. Dan Mills, his owner, a sportsman of high calibre, hung on the rail, watching. He had a feeling of apprehension. Just a few hours ago, he had collapsed in the tack room and Charley Bassitt, horseman of unsavory reputation, had taken "Coronado" to the receiving barn. Thrilling with excitement, Dan's 18-year-old daughter, Heather, watches from her grandstand box. In the unreserved section in back of Heather stands "Slim" Maynard and his pal, "Snapper" Elliott. "Slim", born Andrew Branson Maynard, knew horses from the hoof up. His father had a string of thoroughbreds when Slim was a boy, but a flood ruined the Maynard stables and Slim is now on his uppers. All he and Snapper could scrape together was bet on "Coronado" today.

CHAPTER II

In his jaunty check suit, a trifle too loud perhaps, Slim leaned over the back of the box where Heather sat with her brilliant blue eyes fixed adoringly on Coronado. "Snapper", Slim breathed from a corner of his mouth like a ventriloquist. "Take a look at Bassitt there. Did you see what window he just came from?" Snapper gaped at a man standing there, clutching a bale of tickets. Paunchy, a blue shirt open at collar and with the hard, cold eyes of a gambler, Bassitt looked the part of a case-hardened race tracker.

"That was the $30 window Bassitt just left! He's got a wad of tickets there that would choke Coronado," observed Snapper.

"He knows something or he wouldn't be sending it in this way. I'll guarantee you he's betting around Coronado! And Bassitt's no lunatic when it comes up shopping time around a mutual window. He knows something, you can go to sleep on that."

The horses were at the barrier now, about straightened out in their stalls, a long line of silks gleaming in the sunlight.

Suddenly Slim went white. Premonition, the uncanny saving sense of gamblers, went over him in an evil wave. He caught up his glasses, trained them on the black figure of Coronado and groaned.

Something had gone wrong! As Slim watched, Coronado leaped high in the air on his fore feet and came tumbling to the ground to catch himself under the starting gate. He left Jockey Gardner hanging like a monkey on the steel framework. A dull, buzzing groan went up from the stands.

Starter Eddie Thomas climbed down off his platform. He pulled a loose flap of the gate stall back with one hand and with the other

released Coronado's pinioned leg. The bewildered horse struggled to his feet. Thomas bawled:

"Mount him and ride him around in back of the gate in circles, Gardner. Let's have a good look at him."

Coronado appeared sound enough. But he had broken out in a sudsy lather. He champed savagely at his bit. It was all the veteran jockey could do to hold him.

In the stands and on the lawn thousands were on their feet staring.

Through his glasses, Slim saw the desperation of the little jockey as he reined Coronado into starting gate.

"I'm asking if you're all right, Gardner?" bawled Thomas. "We're ready to go."

Gardner did not answer the starter in words. But he nodded. To the tumult and thunder of 60,000 throats they were off! Out of the mile and a quarter chute they swept, the nineteen thoroughbreds, away to a perfect start.

Coronado's black hide lost momentarily to view. Heather stood on her toes, her eyes eagerly searching for the blue and gold silks of Jockey Joe Gardner. Her heart danced with pride and a tingling rapture surged through her when she found them in the lead.

"Coronado's out in front, just where he wants to be!" Slim Maynard exulted to Snapper Elliott from their position behind Heather's box. "He's never lost a race once he took the lead!"

Down by the rail, Heather's father was thinking this also, and his tired heart lifted. You had to let Coronado run his own race.

Old Dan had found that out, long ago. Coronado was no front runner. He could come from behind to collar the best of them. But it rained the black horse to be back in the pack at any stage of the race. He'd worry and fret until he got to the front, and then settle down with a stride as smooth as a swan's back.

Jockey Gardner had opened up daylight on the field right off the bat, and now, judiciously, he took Coronado to the rail.

"He's home free!" sang out Slim with relief.

Coronado seldom won by a wide margin. He would run only as fast as his opposition made him.

When a horse made a move at him, he would open the throttle. One by one he would grind them into submission that way.

Many a rugged thoroughbred had raced his heart out trying to run down the relentless black prince of the western tracks.

Was there, imperceptible at first, a flaw in the magnificent rhythm of those famous ebony legs? Dan noted, and his heart seemed to dry up in his thin chest. And, with the trained eye of an expert, Slim Maynard saw it, too.

"He's willing!" Slim choked, nudging Snapper, but keeping his glasses moving with the big, black horse. "Snapper, he's groggy. A dead short horse! I tell you, not even a man like Dan Mills can get up to race like this without a tightener."

And they hadn't gone a sixteenth of a mile yet.

Where the straightway from the chute blends into the mile oval proper, Coronado bolted forward with a squeal strange to Gardner's ears. Suddenly his legs buckled. Gardner went catapulting over the black neck. The horse crashed headlong to the ground, and was lost in the jumble of clattering hoofs.

A mighty groan went up from the stands. "He's down! Coronado's down!" The word sounded through the immense throng.

"Coronado!" screamed Heather. She shuddered, closed her eyes and opened them, to find Coronado lying motionless on the track and Gardner, badly shaken up, limping to his side. The other horses swept on, with Lady Killer in the lead.

Heather clung to the rail in front of the box for support, and stood trembling, weak and frightened, helpless as a child. The rest of the race was a blank to her.

A little later she saw her stunned father, standing over Coronado. The great stake horse lay motionless, staring up at Dan out of wide, rolling eyes.

Dan knelt and ran his hand gently over the slim black legs, and then bent them frantically at the knees, but could find no break.

"Get up, laddie", old Dan urged brokenly, tugging gently at the nose band of the horse in the hope Coronado would rise.

But Coronado lay with his head stretched wearily on the track.
